

Fall is here, and we have big news from the BCI leadership team and from BCI Edge. We appreciate your continued support – and your ideas about new ways BCI can get involved in communities like yours. As always, if you know of an opportunity in your area, or if you would like to support our vision in other ways, please email us at info@bciedge.org.

Leadership News

BCI CEO Sharm Scheuerman has announced that Sean Loomer has been named president of Basketball Club International. Sean will be responsible for driving the mission and vision of BCI, supporting the rapid growth of our organization, and fundraising for our continued success. With years of experience working with young athletes, Sean will also work closely with Sharm and Kathy Scheuerman to help BCI Edge keep the attention of our young, enthusiastic audience. Sharm says, "We are fortunate to have a fellow of Sean Loomer's character, integrity, and experience in the basketball and business arenas."

Sean Loomer is a successful coach, entrepreneur, and motivational speaker based in Tucson, Arizona. He has coached athletics, from kindergartners to adults, for 24 years and has served individuals, businesses, and nonprofits around the country as a business coach, fundraiser, and motivational speaker. He hosts a weekly life- and faith-affirming radio program on KNST Fox News Radio in Tucson.

Kathy says, "When Sean first spent a day with the BCI team, as we prepared for an international tournament, he told us how impressed he was by our players and coaches. He said, 'I wish every high school basketball team in the country could spend a day with BCI and see that there can be integrity, character, and values in basketball.' Sean's passion for BCI inspires everyone. We know that he will work hard to help us drive the BCI vision forward."

Court News

BCI is proud to welcome Josh Hall to our full-time roster. An auxiliary player for BCI Edge since 2004, the 6'2" player has set an outstanding example of an athlete using basketball to achieve meaningful life objectives. Josh loves playing with BCI Edge because it allows him to play basketball with a purpose. He is especially interested in the influence that basketball players can have on young fans.

Josh played collegiate basketball at Warner Southern College in central Florida, where he earned NAIA National Player of the Year during his 98-99 season and was also invited to play on the Northwest All-Star Team. After college, Josh played professional basketball in France. He was featured in the 2002 Holiday Jordan catalog for Nike and also lent his basketball moves to an interactive video game. Josh has worked with Dan Dickau (NBA – Currently with the LA Clippers) to develop Dan's All Star Charity Classic in Spokane, Washington, which has raised money for local churches and other non-profits with a strong youth emphasis. He has served as an assistant coach with Warner Pacific College, an urban, Christ-centered liberal arts college in Portland, Oregon.

Josh is a true leader, setting an example of character and integrity for the players he supervises. BCI Edge is excited to have Josh's bright attitude, insight, and enthusiasm, along with his solid basketball aptitude, on our team.

For a look at BCI's current roster, including full-time players and auxiliary players (who endorse BCI Edge while continuing to focus on traditional basketball careers), visit www.bciedge.org today.