

Tony Farmer

Biographical Information

Tony Farmer played in the NBA and Europe for a total of 17 seasons. He played in the NBA for the Los Angeles Lakers, Miami Heat, Charlotte Hornets and Golden State Warriors. He also played in France, Italy, Greece, Spain, Russia, and Puerto Rico. He turned pro after his junior season at the University of Nebraska where he helped lead them to a school record 26 wins as well as an NCAA berth.

Tony officially retired from the professional level in 2009. He is still active today playing 4 days a week and working out 6 days a week to stay in top physical shape as well as being in the basketball scene. He currently plays in the Drew League which is the best Pro-Am league in the world with current NBA players. He also plays in the ABA for the Los Angeles Slam. At 44 years of age basketball is still in his blood. The rapper "The Game" is one of his teammates on the LA Slam.

Tony has always had a passion for fashion. Being 6'10 he has always found it difficult to find clothes to fit his frame without having to make adjustments. He began to research clothing brands and discovered there were few choices for the tall man and woman. Since was not happy with his discovery he decided to launch Mark Clothing Co.

Mark Clothing Co is a lifestyle clothing brand for the tall, fit man and woman. It is designed for men that are 6'3 and taller as well as a woman who is 5'9 and taller. Mark75 represents the men's line because 75 inches is equivalent to 6'3. Mark69 represents 69 inches because it is equivalent to 5'9. The slogan for men is "Cut Above The Rest" and for women it is "Where Height Meets Sexy". The goal for Mark Clothing is to have a global presence and be affordable for everyone whether it is a single mom or a celebrity.

Tony has two children from a previous marriage. TaSia, his daughter is 13 years of age and Londyn his son will be 14 in October. He currently resides in Los Angeles, California where he also devotes time to mentoring young athletes and training them as well.